[Letter from the British Camp.]

Cultivation and Preservation of Winter Cabbage. The following article from the Southern Farmer (Memphis) for June, is worthy the attention of farmers and gardeners, especially the latter? It is now time to think about our winter cabbages. From the 20th of June to 1st of July prepare a bed to bring forward the young plants. It should be in a position partially shaded by trees. Make it quite rich by incorporating a bountiful supply of well-rotted stable manure, and have no clods larger than a pea. Pulverize with rake and hands until the soil feels soft as velvet to the touch. If the weather be dry then sattouch. If the weather be dry then saturate the bed with water before sowing, and as soon as it will work well there-after stir up the surface and draw drills Dry Goods one foot apart and half inch deep; sow and cover the seed, patting the surface smooth with a spade or broad shovel. If the weather is quite dry and hot make the surface quite firm, otherwise let the blows be lighter. In forty-eight hours or less, if the seeds are fresh, the young plants will begin to appear; watch for them very closely, and as soon as they crack the ground, sprinkle them with soot or slaked lime, which continue to do every morning before sunrise until they begin to make rough leaves. When all danger of the fly is past you may HARDWARE, to an inch spart in the drill. Another precaution against the fly may as well be mentioned. Let a lot of urine accamulate until it is foul be for long old. It will then begin plants at susset. The odor will drive the insect and push the plants rapidly forward. The soil and preparation for late cabbages need not be so high as for the everything usually kept in such establishcarly ones. Twenty tons of manure to ments. the acre, on soil already good, will be found sufficient. The plowing should be deep and the harrowing smooth, to facilitate after culture. The large kinds -hould be set in checks, three feet apart each way. The Savoys may be put thirty inches apart.

Transplanting should be delayed until about the 10th of August, for this latitude, (five days later for each degree South, and five earlier for each degree North.) It is best to delay a few days for a "season." But if none occurs go shead without fear, following the directions now to be given : Draw the plants late in the afternoon and keep them saturated with water (wetting the bed thoroughly before beginning to draw;) at the intersections of the checks (made with line and marker,) stick a hole with the bibbler, and into it pour a pint of water; whilst some of the water still remains insert the plant and put the dirt firmly a cont the roots, leaving dry dirt on the surface. It will hardly be necessary to have recourse to further watering, but if the plants wilt very much (which it is not likely they will,) one more watering, late in the afternoon, will neatly done at short notice and on the most ign4 by insure their safety.

The after cultivation is very simple-stir the ground frequently between the rows, by running the spike tooth cultivator both ways, and hoe lightly about the plants until they begin to expand. To preserve the crop is easily done. On the approach of hard freezing weather, in December, prepare a trench LADIES, MISSES, AND CHILDREN'S, four feet wide and eighteen inches deep, which should be drained by a covered drain leading to a ditch giving thorough Ribbons, Flowers, & Dress Trimings, entlet for the water. Pull up the cabroots down and heads up, as they grow. Sift a little dirt over the roots as you put them in. Or they may be set up on the surface and an embankment made around to protect from freezing. Cover

The best quality of have named; hence we earnestly recommend our farmers to carefully consider always on hand. the matter of growing winter cabbages for market. As a cattle food they have no superior. A good acre of ground ought to produce fifty tons of cabbages, which will keep milch cows in a fine flesh and a bountiful flow of milk. Try it; nothing will pay better.

The rationale of growing cabbages in the fall is soon told. They belong naturally to a cool moist climate, hence we constitute the cool moist climate, hence we constitute the citizens of Hickman and vicing must cultivate in that season of the year which most nearly meets the requirements of their nature. BLIND STAGGERS IN HORSES .- The MRS. NANCY DILLON, Proprietess. American Stock Journal, commenting on the blind staggers in horses, says the first thing to be done in a case of this lipd is to relieve the pressure of blood Lind is to relieve the pressure of blood about the head of the animal by copious blood letting. The jugular vein should be taken Southern Express Company as will serve to restore the animal to the command of its limbs. The quantity proper to be taken can be pretty accurately determined on by the effect produced. When the borse shows signs of being relieved, the flow of blood should be checked, the cause of the attack sought for, and medicines given in accordance with the symptoms. If the at tack proceeded from an over-distension of the stomach, the pump should be brought into use, and a free application of warm water be made. Medicines calculated to give freedom to the bowels will be found beneficial.

SAVE THE PLUMS .- A correspondent FINE PARLOR AND OFFICE FURNITURE of the Rural New Yorker, says that for the last three years he has succeeded in be desired by smoking the trees from the time the blossoms begin to fall, until about the first of July. His manner of treatment was as follows: He procured a large sheet-iron pan in which he made a fire of chips, or anything else that would kindle freely. When the fire is in full blast, he smothered the blaze with grass, which produced a dense smoke. He carried this pan around among his trees and smoked every part of them completely. He made this application every evening and morning, giving the trees a thorough smoking, and continuing the process until the curculio season was over.
